Civil Rights Congress Cited as 'Front'

A Government examiner ruled yesterday that the Civil Rights Congress was "conceived by the Kremlin" and operates as a money-raising front for the Communist Party conspiracy in the United States.

David J. Coddaira, a Subversive Activities Control Board member formally recommended that the Congress be required to register with the Attorney General as a subversive organization. His decision must be confirmed by the five-member board.

The Congress was among the first 12 organizations cited by Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr., as a Communist front. The Subversives Control

Act of 1950 requires such groups to make annual reports on their finances and activities and bars their members from sensitive Government jobs.

Coddaira said extensive hearings, in which 10,000 pages of testimony were taken, show the Congress "Extensively uses its funds, resources and personnel to aid and support the Communist Party."

The congress, he said, was conceived in Moscow following World War II to abet its policy of "militant struggle" within the United States. It was founded in Detroit in a merger of numerous groups, including the National Negro Congress and the International Labor Defense Organization, he asserted.

Since 1946, he said, the Party has raised "in excess of a million dollars" in bail for Communist leaders convicted of violating the Smith Act and has provided "hundreds of thousands" for the defense of Communist conspirators.

The Smith Act, passed in 1940, outlaws any conspiracy to teach or advocate the overthrow of the United States Government by violence or force.

Coddaira said the Civil Rights Congress in 1953 raised $315,000 bail to free the first 12 Communists convicted of violating the Smith Act. Since then, he said, it has tried to rally mass support for all Communists indicted for subversive activities.
